Instructional Agenda:

- Opening
- Task(s)
- Checks for Understanding
- Closing

- Opening: SW turn and talk the following question, “Think of your favorite character from a story. What 3 words would you use to describe them?”
- Task:
- 1. Discuss student answers and introduce that just like people in real life are different, characters in a story are different. When we act out a story, it is important to know as much information as we can about the character, this includes how a character, thinks, feels, and acts in the story.
- 2. TW read aloud Little Red Riding Hood...TW model listing traits and motivation for Red.
- 3. TW break students up into three groups and have them write traits and motivations for Granny, the Wolf, and the Woodsman.
- 4. TW review findings. TW introduce the concept of an objective and give the students the stem, “I want to _____ in order to _____.” SW choose a character and create an object.
- 5. TW ask what other tools can an actor use to play a character. SW discuss and TW model using voice, body, and choice to influence a character from the story.
- 6. TW give students a scene and students will practice using the 3 elements to create a character.
- 7. SW perform scene for the class, receiving feedback from the class.
- Check for Understanding:
- 1. TW informally assess trait and motivations by looking a worksheets.
- 2. TW evaluate student performance in the scene using a rubric.
- Closing: Discussion Based
- 1. TW will ask what kind of research an actor does.
- 2. TW ask what tools an actor uses to create a character.
